

INTRODUCTION TO HOLISTIC MANAGEMENT AND REGENERATIVE AG

Would you like to discover the fundamentals of Holistic Management and regenerative agriculture? Come along to a two-hour workshop presented by HM educators and producers on building biodiversity and regenerating landscapes. Open to all — government agencies, Landcare, students, farmers, or attendees at the Farming Matters Conference.

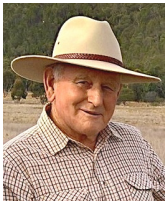

WHEN: Monday 29 March 2021, 10.00 am to 12.30 pm

WHERE: Albury Entertainment Centre, Swift Street, Albury

COST: $25 per person, includes morning tea

Brian Wehlburg, from Inside Outside Management, delivers Holistic Management training and mentoring to farmers, environmental organisations, family businesses and sole operators throughout Australia. Brian is certified with Holistic Management International and the Savory Institute, and previously owned and managed a small farm, selling pasture-raised beef, pork and eggs.

Brian Marshall has been a Holistic Management educator since 1995, providing education Australia-wide, plus internationally for the Savory Institute. He runs Fir Trees, a 45 ha beef cattle enterprise on the Ben Lomond range in the New England region. Brian has also owned and managed commercial-scale properties producing irrigated and dry land grain, hay and saltbush, beef cattle and merino sheep & wool.

Nick Austin is a regenerative farmer from Mundarlo, east of Wagga Wagga, who runs a 1450 ha cattle and sheep farm with his wife Deanna. Nick returned to the family farm property in 2001, and experienced the millennial drought and floods of 2010 and 2012, which were catalysts for change. Nick and Deanna became involved in regenerative agriculture to develop greater flexibility and resilience for their farm.

Proudly supported by

Local Land
Services

BOOK HERE

Conference Website